With CityCenter In Danger of Shutting Harry Reid Helped Save 22,000

THE NATION'S LARGEST construction project was in danger of shutting down, costing Nevada 10,000 construction jobs and more than 12,000 permanent positions.

Harry Reid wouldn't let that happen.

He went to work, talking to the banks and their CEOs, insisting they keep financing for the project flowing and prevent 10,000 Nevadans from being out of work.

His clout and determination made the difference. In just over a month, CityCenter will open, and thousands of Nevadans will be working... thanks to Harry Reid.

Keep TEACHERS in the Classroom

IN THIS TOUGH economy, Nevada's local law enforcement and school budgets were being stretched to the breaking point. Layoffs of police and teachers were a certainty, threatening our safety and our children's education.

Harry Reid's leadership helped secure $120 million in funding to keep law enforcement officers protecting our communities and to keep teachers working in our classrooms, preventing class sizes from ballooning larger.

CLEAN ENERGY JOBS

LONG BEFORE most, Harry Reid saw a bright future of good jobs and prosperity for Nevada beyond just tourism and gaming.

As leader of the Senate, he passed solar, wind and geothermal tax credits that will bring 41,000 jobs to our state and make Nevada the hub of a fast-growing clean energy economy.
